2. QUICK CHECKS

Match what happened to the closest case

An AI tool wrote it, then you edited it, even heavily	AI-generated: disclose. Edits don't change it.
You wrote it, and AI fixed spelling, grammar or phrasing	AI-assisted: no disclosure needed
AI suggested ideas, and you wrote the text yourself	AI-assisted: no disclosure needed
You gave AI your notes, and it wrote the paragraphs	Treat as AI-generated: disclose
AI generated a cover or interior image, even with your title added	AI-generated image: disclose the image
Your own photo with ordinary cleanup (crop, color)	Your image, improved: not generated
A new background or element created with an AI tool	AI-generated image: disclose
A third-party AI tool translated it, then a person polished it	AI-generated translation: disclose

3. ASK YOUR COVER DESIGNER

- ☐ Were the cover images drawn, licensed or generated with AI?
- ☐ If licensed, where are they from?
- ☐ Was any part of an image created with an AI tool?

4. BEFORE YOU ANSWER

- ☐ Answer for each part separately. An AI cover doesn't make your text generated.
- ☐ Don't mark your own writing as generated just to be safe, and don't leave generated material out because you edited it.
- ☐ Still unsure? Describe to KDP support what was created and what was edited.

KDP'S DEFINITIONS, IN THEIR WORDS

AI-generated: "text, images, or translations created by an AI-based tool," even "if you applied substantial edits afterwards." Images "include cover and interior images and artwork."

AI-assisted: you "created the content yourself, and used AI-based tools to edit, refine, error-check, or otherwise improve that content," or used AI to brainstorm but "ultimately created the text or images yourself." KDP says it is not necessary to inform them of these.

When it applies: when you publish a new book, or make edits to and republish an existing one.
